

COPYRIGHT CLAIMS BOARD

Docket number: 23-CCB-0132
May 16, 2023

Ashland Chiropractic Center

CLAIMANT

v.

Mike Briner

RESPONDENT

ORDER TO AMEND NONCOMPLIANT CLAIM

The Copyright Claims Board (Board) finds that your claim does not comply with the requirements of the CASE Act and related regulations. The claim cannot move forward unless it is amended.

If you wish to proceed with this claim, you must file an amended claim by June 15, 2023. If you do not, the Board must dismiss your claim without prejudice, although you may file again in the future before the Board or in federal court. If you file an amended claim and it is found compliant, you will be notified and directed to proceed with service. There is no additional filing fee for an amended claim. 17 U.S.C. § 1506(f)(1)(B).

To make your amended claim compliant, you must resolve the issues identified below. 37 C.F.R. § 224.1\(c\)\(2\). You may also choose to correct or edit any errors or other information in your claim before you file it again. You do not need to provide a legal argument in your claim – just a statement of facts and circumstances. Being specific in your description gives the other party and the Board more information about your claim. There is no character limit, so please be as detailed as possible.

Claimant and Respondent Information

Your claim lists Ashland Chiropractic Center as the claimant and Mike Briner as the respondent; however, in the “Works infringed” section of the claim, you state that the allegedly infringed photograph was authored by Mike Briner, the respondent. In an infringement claim, the claimant is the legal or beneficial owner of the copyright in the work at issue and the respondent is the party that allegedly infringed claimant’s work. Your claim seems to reverse the order of the claimant and respondent. The individual or entity filing the claim is called a “claimant,” and the individual or entity that the claim against is called a “respondent.” If the allegations in your claim about the parties and their contact information are inaccurate, your amended claim must correct the name and contact information for both parties. 37 C.F.R. §§ 222.2(c)(2)-(6). If Ashland Chiropractic obtained rights to the photograph, your amended claim must include specific allegations about how the claimant owns, or has an exclusive license to use, the exclusive rights at issue. You can do this by adding facts to the “Describe the infringement” section which explain how the claimant was the owner of exclusive rights in the work at the time of the infringement or by submitting supplemental documents.

In the alternative, if someone accused you of unlawfully using, or intending to use, their work without permission, you can request a declaration that you did not commit or will not be committing copyright infringement through your actions by bringing a claim for a declaration of noninfringement (a “noninfringement claim”) before the CCB. In order to bring such a claim, you must describe the dispute regarding the work at issue between you and the other party. More information about the elements required to assert a claim of noninfringement is available in the Starting an Noninfringement Claim chapter of the CCB Handbook.

Copyright Infringement Claim – Elements

You have brought a copyright infringement claim before the Board. Your claim must make enough factual allegations to support each “element” of the claim. Information about the elements required to assert a claim of copyright infringement is available in the Starting an Infringement Claim chapter of the CCB Handbook. The elements of a copyright infringement claim are:

1. You own a valid copyright in the work, or have been given an exclusive license to the copyright rights at issue in the work,
2. The respondent used one of your exclusive rights in the work without permission,
3. The respondent had access to your work, meaning a reasonable opportunity to view or hear your work, and
4. The respondent’s work is substantially similar to the original elements of expression in your work.

Your claim does not present clear facts to support the elements of a copyright infringement claim regarding access and substantial similarity, as discussed below.

Access

Your claim does not provide facts about how the respondent had access to your work. “Access” means a reasonable opportunity to view or hear your work before the alleged infringement took place. To address this issue, you must file an amended claim with allegations that make access a reasonable possibility, not just hypothetically or theoretically possible. Acceptable allegations of access may include that your work (a) was sent directly to the respondent or a close associate of the respondent; (b) was widely disseminated or was available to the public or respondent; or (c) is so strikingly similar to the respondent’s work that the respondent could not have created it independently. Alternatively, you can upload a copy of your work and the allegedly infringing work if the copies would demonstrate that the works are so strikingly similar that they could not have been created independently. If you include copies of the works at issue as supplemental documents, they must be clearly labeled and identified so they can be properly compared to each other.

Substantial Similarity

Your claim also does not include enough facts that explain the similarities between your work and the respondent’s allegedly infringing work. If it is not readily apparent from supplemental documents that are submitted with the claim, you must provide some specific allegations about how your work and the allegedly infringing work are similar.

Your claim states that your work is a photograph of a fall scene. You filed what appears to be a screenshot of an allegedly infringing use as a supplemental document. However, you do not provide any information describing or depicting your work. No allegations in the “Describe the infringement” field of the claim describe your work or the allegedly infringing work, or state or show how they are identical or substantially similar. In addition, you have not provided a copy of your work as a supplemental document. As a result, the claim does not provide enough information to enable the respondent to understand the claim and respond to it. When you submit an amended claim, it must include allegations that support the element of substantial similarity. Please provide more details and background regarding this element in your amended claim, including a clear, detailed statement regarding which portions of your work were taken by the respondent in the allegedly infringing work, or documents that are sufficient to show the similarities. If you include copies of the works at issue as supplemental documents, they must be clearly labeled and identified so they can be properly compared to each other. More information about the elements required to assert a claim of copyright infringement is available in the Starting an Infringement Claim chapter of the CCB Handbook.

To submit an amended claim, log into your eCCB account and take the following steps:

1. From your dashboard, click the “Amend claim” button and select your docket number from the dropdown list.
2. Your claim will unlock for editing. The information you originally entered will appear in the same order as in your original claim.
3. Make the necessary edits. If you have filed supplemental documents, you must re-upload any documents you wish to include in the amended claim on the “Documentation” page. Please include only documents directly related to your claim, and label them clearly.
4. Once you have completed your edits, continue to click through the fillable claim form until you reach the “Review” page. The Review page includes all the information that you have provided in the claim up to this point. Carefully double-check the information on this page. If you have any corrections, you can select “Edit” to revise any entries necessary. Each section of information has an “Edit” button, which will take you back to that section so you can make changes. After you make changes, you can click “Save & review” to return to the Review page. Please review your claim carefully. Once you submit your amended claim, you will be unable to edit the claim while it is in compliance review.
5. Once you have completed your review and any revisions, you must confirm that the information in your claim is accurate and truthful to the best of your knowledge. To complete the declaration, type your full name into the “Digital signature” box near the bottom of the “Review filing” page and click “Agree & submit.”
