

COPYRIGHT CLAIMS BOARD

Docket number: 24-CCB-0314
October 30, 2024

ANTHONY T DAVIS

CLAIMANT

v.

Sony Music Entertainment

RESPONDENT

ORDER TO AMEND NONCOMPLIANT CLAIM

The Copyright Claims Board (Board) finds that your claim does not comply with the requirements of the CASE Act and related regulations. The claim cannot move forward unless it is amended.

If you wish to proceed with this claim, you must file an amended claim by November 29, 2024. If you do not, the Board must dismiss your claim without prejudice, although you may file again in the future before the Board or in federal court. If you file an amended claim and it is found compliant, you will be notified and directed to proceed with service. There is no additional filing fee for an amended claim. 17 U.S.C. § 1506(f)(1)(B).

To make your amended claim compliant, you must resolve the issues identified below. 37 C.F.R. § 224.1\(c\)\(2\). You may also choose to correct or edit any errors or other information in your claim before you file it again. You do not need to provide a legal argument in your claim – just a statement of facts and circumstances. Being specific in your description gives the other party and the Board more information about your claim. There is no character limit, so please be as detailed as possible.

Work Infringed — Clarity

Your copyright infringement claim must provide enough information for the respondent to identify the work you claim has been infringed. In your claim you state that the title of the work infringed is “Pretty Tony GetBuck” and you describe the work as “Beat, lyrics, vocals stolen by serval of Sony’s artists.” The registration information you included with the work (“SRU000188999”) indicates that the work you registered may contain more than one song. Thus, it is unclear which work you are alleging was infringed. In your amended claim, you should confirm that the correct registration information is provided, and you must include clarifying information about which of your works was infringed. Being specific in your description gives the other party and the Board more information about your claim.

Copyright Infringement—Elements

You have brought a copyright infringement claim before the Board. Your claim must make enough factual allegations to support each “element” of the claim. Information about the elements required to assert a claim of copyright infringement is available in the Starting an Infringement Claim chapter of the CCB Handbook. The elements of a copyright infringement claim are:

1. You own a valid copyright in the work, or have been given an exclusive license to the copyright rights at issue in the work,
2. The respondent used one of your exclusive rights in the work without permission,
3. The respondent had access to your work, meaning a reasonable opportunity to view or hear your work, and
4. The respondent's work is substantially similar to the original elements of expression in your work.

Your claim does not provide enough facts about the allegedly infringing activity, how the respondent had access to your work, and how your work and the respondent's work is similar. Please provide more details and background regarding these elements in your amended claim.

Infringing Activity

Your claim does not present enough facts to clearly state how the respondent used any exclusive rights you have in the allegedly infringed work without permission. Copyright law grants exclusive rights to copyright owners. These include the right to reproduce, distribute, and publicly perform the work, and to make a "derivative work," which is a work based on the original work. Someone who does one of those activities without the copyright owner's permission may be infringing the copyright, unless they have a legitimate defense. More information about exclusive rights is available on page 3 of the Starting an Infringement Claim chapter of the CCB Handbook.

In your claim you describe the infringement as "stolen music." These allegations do not offer enough detail about the respondent using your work in a way that would infringe any exclusive rights. If you submit an amended claim, you must more fully explain how the respondent infringed your allegedly infringed work. To address this issue, your amended claim must include facts in the "Describe the infringement" section that describe what acts the respondent took, including the acts infringing your copyrights, and specifying how the respondent engaged in the infringing activity. You should be as detailed as possible, setting forth what the respondent did in relation to the work you allege was infringed.

Access

Your claim does not provide facts about how the respondent had access to your work. "Access" means a reasonable opportunity to view or hear your work before the alleged infringement took place. In your claim, you do not state how the respondent's had access your work.

To address this issue, you must file an amended claim with allegations that make access a reasonable possibility, not just hypothetically or theoretically possible. Acceptable allegations of access may include how your work (a) was sent directly to the respondent or a close associate of the respondent; (b) was widely disseminated or was available to the respondent; or (c) is so strikingly similar to the respondent's work that the respondent could not have created it independently. Alternatively, you can upload copies of your work and the allegedly infringing work if they demonstrate that the works are so strikingly similar that they could not have been created independently. If you include copies of the works at issue as supplemental documents, they must be clearly labeled and identified so they can be properly compared to each other.

Substantial Similarity

Your claim also does not include enough facts that explain the similarities between your work and the respondent's allegedly infringing work. If it is not readily apparent from supplemental documents that are submitted with the claim, you must provide some specific allegations about how your work and the allegedly infringing work are similar.

Your claim states that your work is “[b]eat, lyrics, vocals stolen by serval of Sony’s artists.” However, you do not provide any information describing or depicting your work. No allegations in the “Describe the infringement” field of the claim describe your work or the allegedly infringing work, or state or show how they are identical or substantially similar. In addition, you have not provided a copy of your work or the allegedly infringed work as supplemental material.

As a result, the claim does not provide enough information to enable the respondent to understand the claim and respond to it. If you submit an amended claim, it must include allegations that support the element of substantial similarity. Please provide more details and background regarding this element in your amended claim, including a clear, detailed statement regarding which portions of your work were taken by the respondent in the allegedly infringing work, or material that is sufficient to show the similarities. If you include copies of the works at issue as supplemental documents, they must be clearly labeled and identified so they can be properly compared to each other. More information about the elements required to assert a claim of copyright infringement is available in the Starting an Infringement Claim chapter of the CCB Handbook.

Relief Sought

It appears that you are seeking a larger damages award than the CCB can grant for this type of claim. In your claim you stated that “I’ve lost millions.” The most that respondents can be ordered to pay in damages (actual or statutory regardless of how many works) in a CCB proceeding is $30,000. 17 U.S.C. § 1504(e)(1)(D). However, the maximum amount of statutory damages available from the CCB is $15,000 per work of yours that was allegedly infringed. 17 U.S.C. §§ 1504(e)(1)(A)(i)-(II). To address this issue, you may file an amended claim that makes clear what you are asking for and does not allege that you are pursuing remedies from the CCB that it may not provide.

To submit an amended claim, log into your eCCB account and take the following steps:

1. From your dashboard, click the “Amend claim” button and select your docket number from the dropdown list.
2. Your claim will unlock for editing. The information you originally entered will appear in the same order as in your original claim.

3. Make the necessary edits. If you have filed supplemental documents, you must re-upload any documents you wish to include in the amended claim on the “Documentation” page. Please include only documents directly related to your claim, and label them clearly.
4. Once you have completed your edits, continue to click through the fillable claim form until you reach the “Review” page. The Review page includes all the information that you have provided in the claim up to this point. Carefully double-check the information on this page. If you have any corrections, you can select “Edit” to revise any entries necessary. Each section of information has an “Edit” button, which will take you back to that section so you can make changes. After you make changes, you can click “Save & review” to return to the Review page. Please review your claim carefully. Once you submit your amended claim, you will be unable to edit the claim while it is in compliance review.
5. Once you have completed your review and any revisions, you must confirm that the information in your claim is accurate and truthful to the best of your knowledge. To complete the declaration, type your full name into the “Digital signature” box near the bottom of the “Review filing” page and click “Agree & submit.”
