

COPYRIGHT CLAIMS BOARD

Docket number: 25-CCB-0180
May 30, 2025

Loretta Brown

CLAIMANT

v.

Canisha Wynne

RESPONDENT

ORDER TO AMEND NONCOMPLIANT CLAIM

The Copyright Claims Board (Board) finds that your claim does not comply with the requirements of the CASE Act and related regulations. The claim cannot move forward unless it is amended.

If you wish to proceed with this claim, you must file an amended claim by June 30, 2025. If you do not, the Board must dismiss your claim without prejudice, although you may file again in the future before the Board or in federal court. If you file an amended claim and it is found compliant, you will be notified and directed to proceed with service. There is no additional filing fee for an amended claim. 17 U.S.C. § 1506(f)(1)(B).

To make your amended claim compliant, you must resolve the issues identified below. 37 C.F.R. § 224.1\(c\)\(2\). You may also choose to correct or edit any errors or other information in your claim before you file it again.

Description of Claim — Clarity

A claim can be unclear if it does not include enough detail. Your copyright infringement claim must provide enough information for the respondent to understand what their allegedly infringing acts were. If you submit an amended claim, you must include facts in the claim form that more fully explain how the respondent infringed your work. You do not need to provide a legal argument in your claim – just a statement of facts and circumstances. Being specific in your description gives the other party and the Board more information about your claim. There is no character limit so please be as detailed as possible.

Copyright Infringement — Elements

You have brought a copyright infringement claim before the Board. Your claim must make enough factual allegations to support each “element” of the claim. Information about the elements required to assert a claim of copyright infringement is available in the Starting an Infringement Claim chapter of the CCB Handbook. The elements of a copyright infringement claim are:

1. You own a valid copyright in the work, or have been given an exclusive license to the copyright rights at issue in the work,
2. The respondent used one of your exclusive rights in the work without permission,
3. The respondent had access to your work, meaning a reasonable opportunity to view or hear your work, and
4. The respondent’s work is substantially similar to the original elements of expression in your work.

Your claim does not provide enough facts about how the respondent had access to your work or how the respondent's work is substantially similar to your work. Please provide more details and background regarding these elements in your amended claim.

Access

Your claim does not provide facts about how the respondent had access to your work. "Access" means a reasonable opportunity to view or hear your work before the alleged infringement took place. In your claim, you do not describe how the respondent had access to your work.

To address this issue, you must file an amended claim with allegations that make access a reasonable possibility, not just hypothetically or theoretically possible. Acceptable allegations of access may include how your work (a) was sent directly to the respondent or a close associate of the respondent; (b) was widely disseminated or was reasonably available to the respondent; or (c) is so strikingly similar to the respondent's work that the respondent could not have created it independently. Alternatively, you can upload copies of your work and the allegedly infringing work if they demonstrate that the works are so strikingly similar that they could not have been created independently. If you include copies of the works at issue as supplemental documents, they must be clearly labeled and identified so they can be properly compared to each other.

Substantial Similarity

Your claim also does not include enough facts that explain the similarities between your work and the respondent's allegedly infringing work. If it is not readily apparent from supplemental documents that are submitted with the claim, you must provide some specific allegations about how your work and the allegedly infringing work are similar.

Your claim states that your work is a video. However, you do not provide any information describing or showing your work or the respondent's work. No allegations in the "Describe the infringement" field of the claim describe your work or the allegedly infringing work, or state or show how they are identical or substantially similar. In addition, you have not provided a copy of your work or the allegedly infringing work as supplemental documents.

As a result, the claim does not provide enough information to enable the respondent to understand the claim and respond to it. When you submit an amended claim, it must include more factual allegations that support the element of substantial similarity. Please provide more details and background regarding this element in your amended claim, including a clear, detailed statement regarding which portions of your work were taken by the respondent in the allegedly infringing work, or documents that are sufficient to show the similarities. If you include copies of the works at issue as supplemental documents, they must be clearly labeled and identified so they can be properly compared to each other. More information about the elements required to assert a claim of copyright infringement is available in the Starting an Infringement Claim chapter of the CCB Handbook.

Relief

Your description in the “Describe the harm suffered and the relief sought” field of your infringement claim does not indicate what relief you seek from the CCB. In your claim you state that “[t]his infringement has caused harassment, defamation, and misinformation about my work, content, where to watch, and who I am.” These allegations do not appear to be about the type of harm for which the Board could award damages. The Board cannot award any damages for harassment, defamation, or misinformation.

If you seek damages in an infringement claim, you can seek either (1) actual damages, and the respondent’s profits from the infringement, or (2) statutory damages. You can request both in your claim, but you will need to choose before the Board issues a final determination. Actual damages are money damages awarded based on the proven harm or loss you suffered. An example of actual damages may be the amount of lost sales revenue you experienced. Statutory damages are money damages awarded to a successful claimant within a range set by law, without the need to provide proof of the actual amount of harm or loss.

To address this issue, you may file an amended claim that makes clear what you are asking for and does not allege that you are pursuing remedies from the CCB that it may not provide. For additional information please see page 6 of Starting an Infringement Claim and the Damages Chapter in the CCB Handbook.

To submit an amended claim, log into your eCCB account and take the following steps:

1. From your dashboard, click the “Amend claim” button and select your docket number from the dropdown list.
2. Your claim will unlock for editing. The information you originally entered will appear in the same order as in your original claim.
3. Make the necessary edits. If you have filed supplemental documents, you must re-upload any documents you wish to include in the amended claim on the “Documentation” page. Please include only documents directly related to your claim, and label them clearly.
4. Once you have completed your edits, continue to click through the fillable claim form until you reach the “Review” page. The Review page includes all the information that you have provided in the claim up to this point. Carefully double-check the information on this page. If you have any corrections, you can select “Edit” to revise any entries necessary. Each section of information has an “Edit” button, which will take you back to that section so you can make changes. After you make changes, you can click “Save & review” to return to the Review page. Please review your claim carefully. Once you submit your amended claim, you will be unable to edit the claim while it is in compliance review.
5. Once you have completed your review and any revisions, you must confirm that the information in your claim is accurate and truthful to the best of your knowledge. To complete the declaration, type your full name into the “Digital signature” box near the bottom of the “Review filing” page and click “Agree & submit.”
